

FIRE INSPECTORS FIND DEFECTS HERE

ILLINOIS STATE FIRE PREVENTION ASSO. MAKES CAREFUL EXAMINATION.

MANY ATTENDED MEETING

Dixon Business Men Listened to Instructive Talks at Elks' Club Last Evening.

The inspectors of the Illinois State Fire Prevention association, 25 in number, investigated 246 buildings in this city yesterday, including all public buildings, school houses and business establishments, and according to the report of Secretary Mavon, which was made at the informal meeting held at the Elks club last evening, 85 defects were found. However, of the 85 defects found, but 21 were of a serious nature and nearly all were due to defective wiring. The inspectors gave the Dixon business men present at the meeting cause for satisfaction in stating that all of the public buildings in the city including the school houses were in excellent condition.

Many at Meeting.

Members of the association stated that the meeting held last evening, which was called to order by Mayor W. B. Brinton, was the best attended they have held in their inspection of the state, and they also affirmed that the business men of the city exhibited a most noticeable willingness to aid the inspectors in their work and to make the changes suggested.

That the visit of the inspectors to this city will be of untold benefit is assured. Many conditions which were exceedingly dangerous and which would go unremedied by the layman, were pointed out by the inspectors, and the number of disastrous fires that the removal of these conditions will prevent can not be estimated.

Instructive Talks.

The lounging room at the Elks club was well filled with business men and property owners when Mayor Brinton called the meeting to order and introduced the chairman of the evening, Sec. Mavon gave a brief report of the inspection here, and informed the property owners that had been notified of defects that the association would expect favorable reports that such defects had been remedied in two weeks.

Assistant State Fire Marshal F. R. Morgaridge told of the work being done by the state department. He said that prior to the establishment has been established however, of but two convictions were obtained in the state for arson each year for the past ten years. Since the department has been established, however, more convictions are obtained each year than in the entire decade prior to that time. The department is now doing most effective work in the prevention of fires and the provision of safety appliances for the people of the state.

The principal address of the evening was delivered by John Driehs of the Concordia Fire Insurance company, the address being worthy of the consideration of every citizen and property owner. Because of the great amount of advertising this evening the Telegraph is unable to give Mr. Driehs' remarks the attention they deserve and accordingly will print his address in full tomorrow evening.

SIXTH REGIMENT SECOND IN STATE

REPORT OF CONDITION OF NATIONAL GUARD—DIXON CO. IS GOOD.

Morning papers devote much space to a report on the Illinois National Guard made to the war department by Gen. A. L. Mills, chief of the department's division of militia affairs. The report places the Third infantry, with headquarters at Aurora, first in the state and second of the national guard of the country in armory instruction, being surpassed only by the Seventh infantry of the New York National Guard. The Sixth infantry, to which company G of Dixon belongs, is ranked second in the state.

The report divides the companies of the state troops into five divisions—excellent, very good, good, fair and poor. Of the Sixth infantry the companies at Rock Island, Oak Park, Moline and Morrison are ranked excellent; the company at Kewanee very good; Galesburg, Sterling, Dixon, Monmouth and Freeport, good, and Galena, fair.

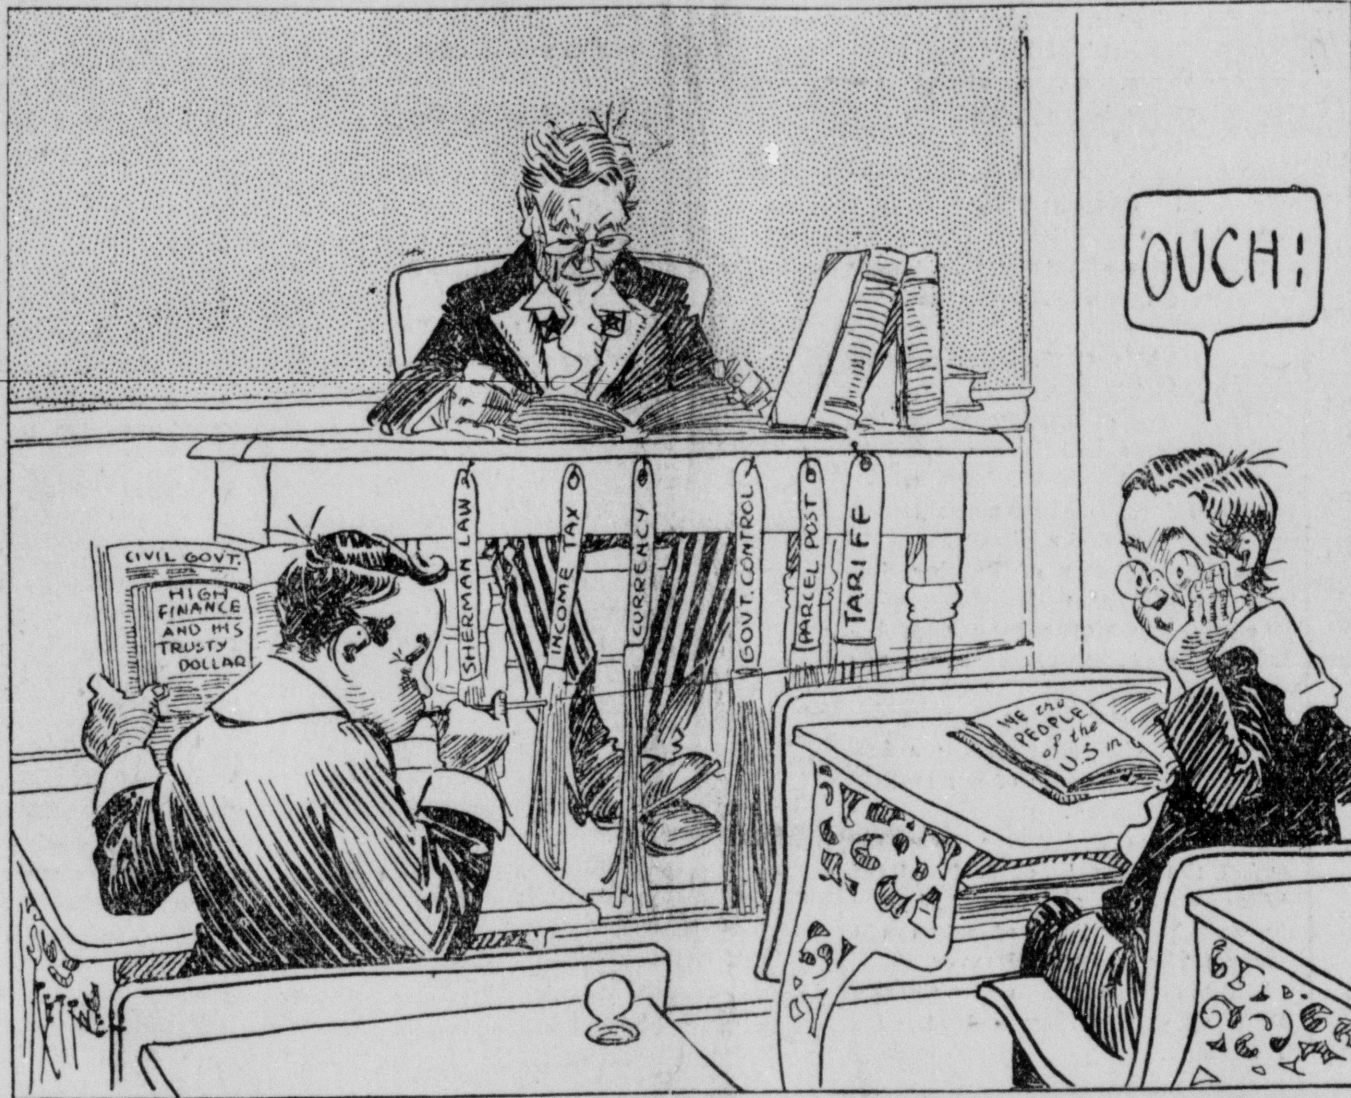

Out of 1,330,556 men between 18 and 44 years Illinois has 1,037,456 men available for military duty according to the report.

For the entire nation the total available for such military duty is 16,127,357 out of 20,538,347 men of military age. But Illinois, while third in number available for military service, is 41st in the list of states in the percentage of this number enrolled in the militia—fifty-seven one hundredths of one per cent. The Illinois militia strength is 5,967.

DID POLICE CLUB BOY AND KILL HIM?

FREEPORT FATHER CLAIMS A BLOW ON HEAD FOLLOWING ARREST CAUSED DEATH OF SON.

HE DEMANDS AN AUTOPSY

Youth Died in Jail—No Inquest Was Held and Father Makes an Investigation.

Freeport, Jan. 28.—An investigation of the death of John Lehman, 26 years old, who died at the police station Tuesday, Jan. 20, may be begun soon and it is probable the remains will be disinterred and a complete investigation made. An autopsy will be held in case the remains are exhumed and it was stated that action would probably be taken at the instigation of the father of the dead man.

It is understood that relatives are not satisfied the young man came to his death in the manner that was stated.

Death Due to Blow?

It has been said that the family of young Lehman believe he was struck on the head after his arrest, causing death. For this reason the investigation will be made. No inquest was conducted over the remains at the time of death, as the physician who attended signed a certificate, stating that an inquest was unnecessary. There was a controversy as to whether or not an inquest should have been held but it was decided that it should be dispensed with as the physician signed the certificate giving a cause of death.

The elder Lehman appeared at the office of Deputy Coroner N. C. Phillips and told him his opinion in the matter and asked for an investigation. The deputy communicated with Chief of Police Root but the latter scouts the theory that Lehman died from injuries sustained in the jail.

At the time of Lehman's death it was said that death resulted from the bursting of a blood vessel in his brain following an attack of delirium tremens.

PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION

A number of business men held an informal meeting at the city hall this morning and discussed the plan for a city rating system as proposed by W. G. Kent. No definite action was taken, but it is generally understood that the plan will be adopted.

PROPOSE TO BRING FREIGHT BOATS HERE

BIG TRANSPORTATION CO. SUGGESTS GOVERNMENT AID ON ROCK RIVER.

PROMISE LOWER FREIGHT RATES

Dixon Business Men Readily Agree to Proposition—20 Per Cent Reduction Promised.

A water route connecting Dixon with the east, south, west and, in fact, any water port in the world was proposed to Dixon manufacturers yesterday by W. A. Bertman, general superintendent of the Chicago, St. Louis & Gulf Transportation Co., and every man whom Mr. Bertman approached was greatly interested in represents will place a number of his project.

The company which Mr. Bertman represents will place a number of Steel barges plying between Chicago and New Orleans as soon as navigation opens in the spring and the tonnage already promised by the heavy wholesale shippers of Chicago, Aurora and other large cities is sufficient to warrant its success at once.

Cheaper Rates.

Mr. Bertman, while here, solicited nothing but the assurance of local shippers that they would use a water way if a rate twenty per cent lower than freight rates was promised. He assured the Dixon people that his company will publish no tariffs, and that all rates will be simply twenty per cent less than the freight rate to the same point.

His object in visiting Dixon was to obtain the written assurance of local shippers that a water route from Dixon would be used at every available opportunity, and with this assurance it is the intention of the company to obtain the improving of Rock river from the canal feeder at Rock Falls to this city by the government.

GO TO CHURCH AT THE KINGDOM

EXCELLENT SERVICES MARKED SPECIAL DAY LAST SUNDAY.

Kingdom, Jan. 27.—Everybody -go-to-church day at the Kingdom last Sunday was a splendid success. Not so much in numbers as in what has been accomplished.

Miss Ethel M. Key of Dixon, Sec. for the Lee county Sunday school association, made her first visit to the Kingdom Sunday school last Sunday and did some splendid work.

A little bee swarm of bright, clean and happy children at the Sunday school in the morning delighted her very much. In them she seemed to see buds of promise of a beautiful future for the Kingdom.

Addressing the Sunday school, Miss Kay spoke of the needs of a home department a cradle roll and a teachers' training class. In the evening she gave a very interesting talk on the needs of co-operation in all lines of christian work, emphasizing the Sunday school. Her efforts seem about to take fruit in a cradle roll, a home department, and the whole school felt the touch of her warm Sunday school heart.

By her fine addresses, her genial intercourse with the people in her plan and happy manner she has captivated the hearts of old and young and will be more warmly greeted the next time.

Pastor Tobias had charge of all the services, introducing the lady in his happy manner and assisting her in every possible way.

Miss Kay will address the Emmanuel Sunday school next Sunday and the Eldena school a week later. Better to wear out than to rust out is Miss Kay's hobby.

BOWL FRIDAY NIGHT.

The Poole and Self teams of the Y. M. C. A. bowling league will contest on the association alleys tomorrow evening.

K. B. Aid Society
The K. B. Aid society met yesterday at the home of Mrs. L. R. Floto of the Kingdom. In spite of the bad roads sixteen members and three visitors were present. The guest of honor was Mrs. Ernestine Gilton of South Dakota. A large amount of sewing was done for Mrs. Lester Breisch and Mrs. Anna Stevens. A delicious scramble dinner was served and after this a business meeting was held, opening with a prayer. Donations for Mt. Union were arranged. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The Floto home was beautifully decorated in cut plants and potted plants and hyacinths.
Late in the afternoon after a very delightful day the meeting dispersed, each member declaring Mrs. Floto, and Mr. Floto as well, royal entertainers.

Return After Visit.
Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Smith of Green Island, Ia., who have been guests of Mrs. Jimmie Keenan of River street, left for home today. They expect in the spring to move to a farm near Fruit City, Mo., owned by Mrs. Keenan. Mrs. Smith is a niece of Mrs. Keenan.

With Bridge.
Mrs. W. J. McAlpine entertained Wednesday afternoon and evening with bridge.

McPherson-Cox.
E. Everett Cox of Oregon township, Ogle county, and Miss Bessie McPherson of Grand Detour were united in marriage Wednesday at 4 p. m. at St. Paul's Lutheran parsonage by Rev. F. D. Altman, pastor of that church. The young people were attended by Fred M. Cox and Miss Nora B. McPherson, and left on an evening train for a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside on a farm north of Grand Detour. Both young people are very popular with a large number of friends who will extend heartiest congratulations.

Entertained Friends.
County Judge and Mrs. R. H. Scott entertained a few friends at their home in North Dixon last evening. Cards furnished the evening's diversion.

Is Honored.

Mrs. Antoinette Miller, mother of Mrs. M. D. Grimes, was 82 years old yesterday and their many friends remembered the date and she was given a postal shower, cards coming from California and Nebraska, Fruit etc., found their way to the home of Mrs. Grimes, with whom Mrs. Miller resides. The day was quietly observed by Mrs. Miller. She came to Dixon when but three years old, from Ohio, in 1835 and since has resided here. She has all her faculties intact and it is a pleasure to converse with her. Her many friends wish her many returns of the happy day.

Richardson-Thorp

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the county court room at the court house Mrs. Laura Richardson and Emery L. Thorp of Steward were united in marriage. They returned home on the afternoon passenger to receive the best wishes of many friends.

The KITCHEN CABINET

FROM the sunlit heights of life the deep valleys and hollows of its necessities look darkest; but to the faithful whose part lies there, there is still light enough to show the way, and to no other eyes do the overhanging hills and blue heaven seem so brilliant.

—James Martineau.

WHEN COMPANY COMES.

There is an old saying handed down from some remote ancestor which tells us that "the ornaments of a house are the friends who frequent it." There are few housekeepers who do not enjoy very keenly the entertainment of friends, and there are fewer with the means to entertain as they like, yet true hospitality does not consist in the things with which you furnish your table; better a dinner of herbs where there is homeliness, than an eight course dinner with the feeling that it is to be paid for later by hard skimping.

In this day and age we are looking for and expecting originality from our educated women; anybody may copy the rich neighbor, provided one's credit is good, but the woman who serves her friends with food and entertainment within her means is bound to be respected by all who know her. A simple meal, dainty and well served, is so much more acceptable than the elaborate one which shows it is too great a strain.

It is a positive joy to the dinner-giver to be entertained at an old-fashioned dinner table, where each has a share in the serving. Trying to outdo our neighbor is too common a performance. The popular hostess is she who starts something original. The pity is that there are so many who could entertain simply, and should return hospitality, who hesitate for fear of the expense. Let the entertainment be within the means, make it simple and then go calmly along, envying nobody, setting a wholesome example which will be followed with gratitude by the rest of the sensible members of society, who are fortunate enough to have such a friend.

Great people have always been in favor of simple food, and it is usually Mrs. Newly Rich who attempts to outdo others and serve up impossible messes whose only recommendation is the employment they give our long-suffering physicians.

Club of Mutes in Paris.

A deaf and dumb club has been organized at Paris, France. Two hundred men and women of the French Deaf and Dumb union walked across the great stone-paved square in front of the Palace of Versailles on a recent Sunday without a sound except the sound made by their footsteps. In dead silence they walked across the Place St. Louis to the statue of the Abbe de l'Epee. In dead silence their leaders, who headed the procession, laid a wreath at the foot of the statue, and in dead silence speeches were made and applauded. The silent procession honored the memory, as they honor it every year, of the man who did for his afflicted countrymen what Braille did for the deaf and dumb in England. The club will shortly build premises. A subscription has been furnished the undertaking by the government.

Child Labor in Georgia.
At least for another year ten-year-old children who can neither read nor write will lend their efforts to increasing the fortunes of the cotton-mill owners of Georgia. The Anderson bill, which raised the age limit for working children to thirteen years for 1914 and provided for a further increase to fourteen years in 1915, has been sidetracked in the legislature, and the session is about to close. Georgia has made practically no advances along this line since 1906. This is not creditable to the traditional chivalry and civilization of the south. —Journal of American Medical Association.

SHELBY M. CULLOM.

The death of Hon. Shelby M. Cullom closes one of the most remarkable political careers in the history of American politics. Ten years before the civil war started he accepted his first political position in Sangamon county, Illinois, and from that day until his death yesterday in Washington there has hardly been an interruption in his public service for the state or nation.

Senator Cullom was forced to fight hard to retain his seat in the senate for during all his years of service there he was continually defending himself from the younger, eager politicians in his home state. The venerable statesman did wonderfully well, but failed at last to master the changes that came with later day politics, politics that he did not understand. His death was hastened by his defeat, though his appointment to the Lincoln Memorial Commission was a prop to him and a salve to his feelings, for his love and friendship for the martyred president made the work a joy.

Senator Cullom was an honorable man. No man can breathe a scandal against him, although they may point out his mistakes. His long life has been a service to his people and that he worked for them alone is proven by his financial condition, which in Washington would be regarded as poor. He has never been wealthy. The older men of Illinois especially loved Shelby M. Cullom. He was sincerely admired by all.

DIVIDED WE FALL.

Chicago Tribune: In the past the voters of Chicago have divided themselves into democrats and republicans in nearly equal numbers.

Issues, effectiveness of organization, and popularity of candidates have turned elections one way or the other.

The democratic party has always been able to count on 75 to 90 per cent of its party voters, irrespective of any and all conditions.

The republican voters have been more free of party bonds.

As long ago as 1897 John Harlan, running as an independent, polled more than half of the republican vote.

The same has held true in aldermanic elections. Independents have not rarely been elected in strong republican wards. Among them were Alderman Potter, elected from the 5th ward in 1904, and Ald. Thomson, elected from the 25th ward in 1908 and 1910.

Frequently the nomination of independent candidates has resulted in withdrawing enough votes from the republican candidates to insure the election of democrats.

In 1912 the republican party divided with the consequent election of practically the entire democratic ticket.

The progressive party, whatever its relative strength to the republican party, has made no inroads upon the democratic voters.

Now the republican and progressive parties divide the old republican vote, and the democratic vote is solid. We also have the new nonpartisan movement, or as some call it, the nonpartisan party, proposing to run candidates in the old republican wards to further split the old republican vote.

The inevitable result of this will be to give a still greater tactical advantage to the cohesive democratic voters.

Pass Christian

By WALT MASON

Pass Christian, which is now on tap, was never known till recently, and then it sprang upon the map with energy, yet decently. I know not if it be a town, nor what the games they're playing there; you cannot keep a good Pass down when Presidents are staying there. Pass Christian, by the public sheets, has boasted been most cleverly, but silence broods upon the streets and in the halls of Beverly. One burg goes up, another down, for burgs are like humanity; humiliation holds one down, while one swells up with vanity. Pass Christian throbbed upon the wires for its brief day, however, while silent were the minstrels' lyres, and hushed the bells of Beverly. Pass Christian by excitement tossed, saw crowded every hostelry, until her citizens were lost in all the crush and jostly; one day unknown, the next day great, was ever like emergency? Serene and proud she faced her fate, quite equal to the urgency; to entertain her horde of guests she met them all endeavorly, while sorrow filled the manly breasts and chilled the hearts at Beverly.

Tobacco Sterilizes the Mouth. Tobacco is exceedingly efficacious in the killing of microbes, according to Messrs. Langlais and Sartory of Paris, who state their experiments have shown that in five minutes tobacco smoke will kill almost all the microbes in the saliva, thus nearly completely sterilizing the mouth. One of the experiments carried out by MM. Langlais and Sartory was to place several cigars in water containing many million cholera microbes to the square inch. The tobacco sterilized and destroyed the microbes in twenty-four hours.—New York Press.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

REST ROOM NEEDED HERE.

Editor Telegraph—In the Jan. 21st issue of the Telegraph I observed an editorial, "The Hitching Posts Have Not Been Replaced" and "We Want the Farmers to Visit Us". How about the farmers' wives, sisters, sweethearts and friends?

I have seen on busy days, ladies, myself included, after their shopping is done, standing on the street corner waiting for the husband, sweetheart or friend, and nowhere to go. Oregon has a very nice rest room and reading room, with comfortable chairs and good reading matter supplied by the good ladies of the city. I think a drop-a-nickle or a dime slot machine would be a small matter that would help keep up a much needed place. I know many ladies would gladly contribute in various ways to make such a place attractive and comfortable.

A VISITOR.

REMAINS OF WILLIAM CAULEY LAID TO REST

The remains of Wm. Cauley, who died in Chicago Monday, arrived in Dixon at noon today and were taken directly to Oakwood cemetery, where short services were conducted by Father Foley, the body being laid to rest beside that of his wife, who died some time ago. Among those who accompanied the funeral party from Chicago were Miss Carew, Miss Cauley and Henry and Daniel Coughlin, while Mrs. Kate McKeavitt and daughter, Miss Mayme and Mrs. George Farris and daughter of Sterling were also here.

Dramatic Roles

FAMILY THEATRE

The new bill at the Family this evening will have a surprise in Whitney's Operatic Dolls, seven people, three ladies and two men. The scene is so arranged that the seven human heads are adjusted to dolls' bodies, presenting an unique spectacle. The other act is a black face presented by Sid Allen.

Pictures tonight:
Daredevil Mountaineer, in two reels,
Some Night.

THE NATURAL LAW

Clinton Herald: Clinton people evidently are not in tune with the time of the dramatic day, which one paragrapher remarks is "sex o'clock," and failed to give the good sized audience that the play, "The Natural Law," really deserves. It is a very competent cast, with Ann Tasker in the role of the girl who finds herself and becomes a woman after having yielded to the impulses of the laws of nature, and Charles W. Dingle presenting an adequate study of an honorable physician.

Although the story deals with subjects that have been too covertly known and too much left alone, it is handled in a manner that leaves no distaste. Instead there is roused a great big sympathy for the girl, and the knowledge that she gives of inherent worth.

Love steadfast and sincere is the basis of the story, after all, and not impulse, as one might think, for it is the love of the young doctor for the girl, his sincerity in the chosen profession, that makes the whole story glow with a white light. The temptation that comes to the young physician, doubly strong because he loves the girl, reveals how supremely worthy the ideals of a physician are.

THE NATURAL LAW TONIGHT.

In The Natural Law, at the opera house tonight, Chas. Sumner, the author of this drama, has built up a play worth while. His knowledge of human nature helps him weave his comedy. He gives a true value to human emotions. The story concerns Ruth, a girl of 18, with unusual artistic ability. The death of her father and illness of her mother necessitates her being left alone in New York. The theme of the play is socialistic but is treated as drama rather than as a clinic as in Damaged Goods.

The most marvelous tree in the world is the Carnahuba palm, which grows in Brazil. Its roots produce the same medicinal effect as sarsaparilla. From parts of the tree wine and vinegar are made. Its fruit is used for feeding cattle. Of the straw, hats, baskets, brooms and mats are made. It is also used for thatching houses. The pulp has an agreeable taste, and the nut is sometimes used as a substitute for coffee. Its stems afford strong, light fibers and serve also for joists, rafters and other building materials. It yields a saccharine substance, as well as a starch resembling sago. Of the wood of the stem musical instruments, water tubes and pumps are made. From the stem a white liquid similar to the milk of the coconut, may be extracted. Moreover, salt is extracted from the tree, and likewise an alkali used in the manufacture of common soap.

Craze for Cameos.

There is quite a craze for cameos in New York. Set in rings, bracelets, ear-rings or used as brooches and lockets, they are quaintly old fashioned and artistic. A stunning antique pair of ear-rings of long pear shaped ebony pendants with a clear white cameo rising in the center is most effective, and wedgewood cameos with their brilliant blue backgrounds are most stunning in a setting of pearls. The delicate pale pink coral cameos make an attractive setting for evening mounted in filigree gold, and brooches of the old brown and white cameo set in a plain golden band are charming in the buckle of the few ubiquitous velvet neckbands. Even high back combs for the hair are set with cameos, and with a Grecian evening gown one aesthetic dancer wore a fillet of them confining her Titan tresses.

Pearls of Scotland.

Scotland still produces pearls, found mainly in the fresh-water mussel. They could, no doubt, be found in England if the industry were profitable. Cleopatra was not the only person who swallowed a dissolved pearl. Until comparatively recently they were used medicinally in the west, and still appear in the materia medica of China. According to one Chinese authority, a pearl, after being treated with pumice stone and honeycomb, mixed with the gall of a serpent, "might be drawn out to the length of three or four feet. Make it into pills and swallow them—henceforth food will be unnecessary." The suggestion is not that the patient would be finished off, but that he would live, foodless, forever.

THE NE'ER-DO-WELL

A Romance of the Panama Canal
BY REX BEACH

COPYRIGHT, 1910, 1911, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

SYNOPSIS.

Kirk Anthony, son of a rich man, with college friends, gets into a fracas in a New York resort. A detective is hurt. Jefferson Locke insinuates himself into the college men's party.

Locke, aided by Kirk's friend Higgins, who thinks it a joke, drugs Kirk and puts him aboard a ship bound for Colon. Kirk is on the passenger list as Locke.

"Broke" and without baggage, aboard the ship Kirk makes the acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cortlandt.

Cortlandt is in the American diplomatic service and is going to Panama on a mission. In Colon Kirk, as the son of a big railroad man, is taken up by Weeks, American consul.

Kirk's father repudiates him, and Weeks casts him out as an impostor. Kirk meets Allan, a Jamaican negro canal worker out of a job. The two are arrested by Colon police for helping to put out a fire.

Kirk and Allan are treated brutally in a Colon jail by young Alfarez, commandant of police. Allan's release is obtained by the British consul, but Weeks refuses to aid Kirk. Mrs. Cortlandt gets a phone call.

CHAPTER VII.

El Comandante.

THE newcomer was a black haired, black eyed young fellow of perhaps thirty. While his skin was swarthy even in this poor light, it could be seen that he was of the real Castilian type and of a much better class than the others. He was slender and straight, his mouth small and decorated by a carefully penciled little mustache, which was groomed to a needle sharpness.

"Eh! Ere you are," he began angrily. "Yes, I want to get out, too. What does this treatment mean?"

The newcomer stepped toward the other occupant of the cell, at which Allan broke out in terror: "Don't you touch me! I'm a British object."

After scanning the Jamaican carefully the officer issued an order to one of his men, who left the room.

"And I'm an American," Anthony declared. "You'll have to answer for this."

"Perhaps you don't know who I am. I am Ramon Alfarez, commandant of police, and you dare to throw the water of the 'ose wagon upon my person. Your government will settle for those furois." His white teeth showed in a furious snarl. The commandant's eyes flashed as he asked shortly, "What is your name?"

"Anthony. Your men tried to kill that boy, and when I wouldn't stand for it they beat me up."

"You strook me wit' the water of the 'ose carriage," repeated the other.

"I didn't know who you were. I was helping to stop that fire when you butted in. Those runs of yours got handcuffs on me and then beat me up. I'm sick. So's that boy. We need a doctor."

Alfarez shook his head. "You resist the police. Even in your country one must not do that."

"Will you take me to a telephone?" "It is not permit."

"Will you notify Mr. Weeks?" Receiving no reply to this request, Kirk broke out: "Well, then, what are you going to do? Let us stay here all night?"

"What is your business?" "I haven't any."

"You don't work on the canal?" "No. I'm a tourist. My father is a big railroad man in the States. I'm telling you this so you'll know how to act."

"Were do you leave—what hotel?" "I've been stopping with Mr. Weeks." Senior Alfarez's attitude became somewhat less forbidding.

"In due time he will be notify of your outrage to my person," he announced.

The fellow who had left the room a moment before now reappeared, carrying a bucket of water and some towels, with which he directed Allan to remove the blood from his face and hands. When it came Kirk's turn, however, he objected.

"I think I'll wait until Weeks sees me," he said.

But Alfarez retorted sharply, "It is not permit." And, seeing that resistance would be useless, Kirk acquiesced as gracefully as he could, remarking as he did so:

"You'll have hard work washing off this and this." He indicated the traces of the handcuffs and the gash in his scalp.

The commandant turned to his men and addressed them at some length, calling them to task, as Allan later informed his companion, for using their clubs in a manner to mark their prisoners so conspicuously. Then he followed them into the corridor, closing the grating behind him.

The hours passed, and daylight came with no word from the American consul. By this time the two prisoners were really in need of medical attention. Their confusions pained them severely. Kirk felt as if one or more of his ribs were broken, and his suffering, combined with hunger, prevented sleep. He became feverish and fretful, but his demands for communication with the outside world were calmly ignored, although he felt certain that his wishes were fully understood.

When the morning had passed without his being arraigned for a hearing he grew alarmed. Evidently he had been flung into confinement and forgotten. Eventually Kirk and Allan were given food, but still no one came to their relief.

The afternoon wore on without an encouraging sign till Kirk began to think that Weeks had refused to interfere for him and intended to leave him to the mercies of his enemies.

It was considerably after dark when a visitor was at last admitted. He proved to be the English consul, whom Anthony had never met.

"What are you doing here?" the newcomer inquired. Then when the facts had been laid before him he exclaimed, "Why, I heard that a Jamaican negro had been arrested, but I heard nothing about mistreatment of a white man."

"Doesn't anybody know I'm here?" "I'm sure no one does. Those heathens lied to you. They never communicated with Weeks or anybody. They're afraid. This is an old trick of theirs—manhandling a prisoner, then keeping him hidden until he recovers. If he doesn't recover they get out of it on some excuse or other as best they can. But I'll have Allan here out in two hours or I'll know the reason. England protects her subjects, Mr. Anthony, and these people know it."

"I guess Uncle Sam is strong enough to command respect," said Anthony.

"Well, I know the circumstances now, and I'll go straight to Weeks. He can arrange your release without trouble. If you were an Englishman, I'd have you out in no time and you'd collect handsome damages too. This boy will."

True to the consul's prediction, a little later the Jamaican was led out of the cell, and from the fact that he was not brought back Kirk judged that the British intervention had been effectual. But it was not until the next morning, the second of his imprisonment, that the cell door opened once more, this time to admit the portly figure of John Weeks and the spruce person of Senior Ramon Alfarez.

Kirk told his story as briefly and convincingly as he could. But when he had finished the consul shook his head.

"I don't see what I can do for you," he said. "According to your own declaration you resisted a police officer. You'll have to take your medicine. You'll be tried as soon as they get around to it."

"Look here!" Kirk showed the marks his assailants had left upon him. "Will you stand for that? I've been here two nights now without medical attention."

"How about that, Alfarez?" The commandant shrugged his shoulders. "If he required a doctor, one shall be secure, but he is not severely injured. I've explain the frightful indignity to the honor of my person, yes? As for me, pooh! It is forget."

He waved his hand gracefully and smiled sweetly upon his fat visitor.

"I guess you ain't hurt much," said Weeks, eyeing his countryman coldly.

"You didn't get any more than was coming to you."

"I won't stand for this!" cried the prisoner hotly. "The English consul got that nigger boy out and I want you to do the same for me."

"You don't understand. I've got business interests in this country, and I can't dash about creating international issues every time an American gets locked up for disorderly conduct."

"Are you really afraid to do anything?" Kirk inquired slowly. "Or is it because of our row?"

"Oh, there's nothing personal about it! Of course, I'll see that you have a fair trial!"

The commandant spoke up with ingratiating politeness. "The prisoner says he is reech man's son."

Weeks snorted indignantly. "He gave you that fairy tale, eh? He said his name was Anthony, and his father was a railroad president, didn't he? Well, he imposed on me, too, but his name is Locke, and as near as I can learn, he practically stowed away on the Santa Cruz."

"Ah-h!" The officer's eyes widened as he turned them upon his prisoner.

"He is then a what you call tramp."

"Ah! I know, he stuck me for a lot of bills. I'll have to see that he gets fair treatment, I suppose, because he's an American, but that ends my duty."

"Is this the best you'll do for me?" Kirk inquired, as Weeks made ready to go.

"Yes." "Will you cable my father?" "At 25 cents a word? Hardly!" The speaker mopped his face, exclaiming, "There's no use of talking, I've got to get out in the air. It's too hot in here for me."

Half an hour later the commandant returned to the cell, and this time he brought with him a number of his little policemen, each armed with a club. Feeling some menace in their coming, Kirk, who had seated himself dejectedly, arose to ask, "What's coming off?"

Alfarez merely issued some directions in Spanish, and chain handcuffs were once more snapped upon the prisoner's wrists.

"So, you're going to hold my trial, eh?" cried Kirk.

But the other snarled, "Senior Locke, you 'ave force' the water of the 'ose wagon upon my body for making the people laugh. Bueno! Now I shall laugh." He seated himself, then nodded at his men to begin.

Mrs. Cortlandt answered her telephone for the second time, repeating with some impatience, "Tell the man I can't see him."

"But he refuses to leave—says he must see you at once; it's important," came the voice of the clerk.

"Oh, very well. I'll come down." She hung up the receiver with a snap. In the hotel lobby she was directed toward a very ragged, very woebegone young black on the rear porch, who at sight of her began to fumble his hat and run his words together so excitedly that she was forced to calm him.

"Now, now! I can't understand a word. Who are you?" "H'Allan, mistress."

"You say some one is ill?" "Oh, yes, he is very ill indeed, mistress—hall covered with blood and his poor 'ands hall cut."

"Who is it?" "Mr. h'Anthony."

"Anthony?" Mrs. Cortlandt started. "What has happened? Quick!"

Had she been less acquainted with the Caribbean dialects she would have missed much of Allan's story. Rapidly she gathered the facts of the case, while her cheeks whitened and her eyes grew dark with indignation.

"How did you get here?" she asked. "With my feet, mistress. Sometimes rode I on the train, but the train people are very common; they haddressed me rudely and threw me by the wayside."

"Couldn't you telephone?" "I do not understand 'ow."

"Why didn't he notify me at once? If I had only known—"

"Those 'careless Spigoties would not hallow it. Oh, you will hassist the poor man! Say it. Praise be to God, he is bleeding in the prison!"

"Yes, yes, certainly."

"God bless you, good mistress. He told me to find you and present his recital."

"Here, take this money and go back to Colon by the first train. We may need you. Now go! I'll be there ahead of you."

She ran up the hotel stairs as if pursued, bursting in upon her husband impetuously:

"Young Anthony is in jail in Colon," she panted. "He's been locked up for three days, and they won't let him out."

"The devil! You said he'd gone back to New York. What is it about?"

"I thought he had. They arrested him for some silly thing, and he's hurt." She hurriedly recounted Allan's story, adding, in conclusion, "That black boy came all the way across the isthmus to tell us!"

"I'll get the American consul by phone."

But Mrs. Cortlandt interrupted. "Weeks is a fool! He wouldn't do anything. Wait!" She stepped to the instrument and rang violently. "Give me Colonel Jolson's office, quickly. If he is not there, find him. I don't care where he is, find him; it is important. This is Mrs. Cortlandt speaking."

"What do you mean to do?" said Cortlandt.

"Go to Colon at once. This is young Alfarez doing—the whipper snapper—you must lay him out for this. How dare he!"

"Better go carefully. Remember General Alfarez is his father."

"I understand. But we are bound to come to a breach sooner or later."

"I hardly think so. I believe we can bring him around all right—anyhow, I haven't lost hope. Anthony chose the worst possible time for this escapade. I suppose it will mean diplomatic difficulties and all that, and once we lose old Alfarez—"

"We will lose him anyhow," snapped the woman. "I've seen it coming, although you could not. I'll break Ramon for this."

"Then you'll break us. Do you think Anthony is worth it?"

"My dear Stephen, they nearly killed that poor boy, and I shan't allow it. Don't Anibal Alfarez is not the only presidential timber in the republic. If he breaks with us it will cost him dearly. You think he is friendly, but I know that deep down in his crafty old heart he despises all us Americans. The moment he dares, he'll turn against us."

Cortlandt's frosty countenance showed signs of uneasy agitation as he answered: "You're mad! You threaten to ruin everything. You understand perfectly—there's no use of my explaining. Let me call on him this afternoon. He will instruct his son."

"No! He would procrastinate as usual. There would be the customary delays and excuses, and meanwhile Anthony would be in jail at Colon. They would have a defense all prepared. Besides, if it's to be a fight we must have all the weapons possible—and this affair may prove a good one. Anyhow, you mustn't ask a favor of him at this time; he must ask, not you."

The telephone rang, and the speaker snatched the receiver from its hook.

"Hello! Colonel Jolson, I'm very glad I caught you. This is Mrs. Cortlandt. Colonel Jolson, young Ramon Alfarez has arrested Kirk Anthony, of whom I spoke to you. They have maltreated him, as usual, and have hidden him for three days. Yes, yes! I discovered it quite by accident while Mr. Cortlandt was downtown. Oh, this is serious, and I'm furious. . . . That will do no good; I have reasons for preferring to handle it myself. . . . Thank you for the compliment. We must go to Colon at once, and I thought you might give us a special. . . . There was a slight pause, then: 'Good! That will do quite as well. In fifteen minutes. Thank you. Goodbye.'"

Turning to her husband, she explained swiftly: "The colonel's automobile will be waiting at the station in fifteen minutes. Are you ready?"

"I think you are going about this in the wrong way," he said coldly.

"When will you learn?" She checked her crisp words at the flush that leaped to his cheeks. "I beg your pardon, Stephen. Please do as Colonel Jolson has done and trust me to manage this affair."

He bowed and left her, saying, "I will have a coach waiting at the door."

Fifteen minutes later a gasoline railroad motorcar with two passengers in addition to its driver and garman rolled out of the yards at Panama City and took the main line, running under orders like a special train.

FIGHTS TO SAVE COUNTRY

Sends Troops to Ascertain Fate of 25 Americans on Train Held Up by Bandits—U. S. Scouts Report That Japan Is Huerta Ally.

Mexico City, Jan. 29.—It is reported here that Felix Diaz has landed at Puerto, Mex., with a force of men and artillery. It is said that the city is now in his hands. The report further declares that followers of Diaz are now marching to Oaxaca where Diaz is a great favorite.

Juarez, Jan. 29.—Francisco Villa, military commander of the rebels, disclaimed any ambition to become president of Mexico in the event of the revolution being successful. Although his victories against the Huerta forces at Ojinaga and Chihuahua had attracted attention to himself, he did not wish to overshadow General Carranza, whom he recognized as the leader of the revolution.

"Should General Carranza become president he would receive my support, and I would obey his commands," said General Villa. "I would leave the country if he ordered me to do so."

Go to Americans' Relief. A trainload of rebels was sent to Guzman to learn the fate of passengers, including 25 Americans, who were reported held up by Maximo Castillo's bandits on the Mexico Northwestern railroad. Among the Americans were George Routledge, superintendent of the railroad, and George Sowsen, a Mormon colonist.

Japan as Huerta Ally Scouted. Washington, Jan. 29.—Published reports that Japan was supplying arms to the Huerta government and that President Wilson had discussed that phase of the Mexican situation with members of the senate foreign relations committee Monday night were characterized at the White House as "an old story revamped."

It was stated on the authority of a senator who attended that during a general talk those who favored raising the embargo of arms expressed the view that the Huerta government was able to procure ammunition with ease from abroad. They did not contend the Japanese government was directly concerned, but declared that ammunition had been bought of Japanese commercial houses.

Wilson's Views Kept Secret. It was stated that the subject was discussed incidentally in connection with the argument that the constitutionalists were at a disadvantage in the present struggle without ports of entry such as the Huerta government holds. White House officials declined absolutely to say what the views of the president were on the subject.

Bryan Asks Mexican's Return. Austin, Tex., Jan. 29.—Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires at Mexico City, and Consul Garrett at Nuevo Laredo have been directed by the state department to demand the release of Samuel Cantu and his return to American soil by Mexican federalists, says a telegram received by Governor Colquitt from Secretary Bryan. Cantu, a wealthy Mexican refugee, is alleged to have been kidnapped on the American side opposite Nuevo Laredo, taken to Mexico and sentenced to death.

TARS SAVE FLEET FROM FIRE

Blaze Near Magazine of Cruiser Birmingham.

Philadelphia, Jan. 29.—The scout cruiser Birmingham was badly damaged by fire which was gotten under control only after it had eaten its way to within a few feet of the ship's magazine, fully stored with thousands of rounds of ammunition of all sizes and a number of torpedoes. Fifteen hundred bluejackets fought heroically, and it was by their efforts that the entire reserve fleet was saved from destruction. The fire, which did damage estimated at many thousands of dollars, would have blown the entire navy yard, with ships of the reserve fleet stationed there, into bits if it had not been stopped. No one was injured, although one man was overcome. The Birmingham is under the command of Capt. W. V. Pratt and was under orders to sail from the yard on February 2 for the Panama canal, where she was to act as the flagship of the torpedo boat fleet.

6 PER CENT. LIMIT IN RESERVE BANK

Organization Committee Fixes
Maximum Amount of Stock Acquirable.

TO ALTER RULING IN FUTURE

Federal Body Holds Hearings Today at Seattle, Wash.—Bankers Prepare to Extend Operations Abroad.

Washington, Jan. 29.—It was decided by the federal reserve bank organization committee that no bank shall be allowed to take stock in the reserve bank in its district amounting to more than six per cent. of its capital and surplus.

The law says that a national bank cannot take less than six per cent., but is not so plain as to any limit on the amount above six per cent. which might be subscribed.

It is understood that if future demands point to the need for larger subscriptions the committee or the federal reserve board can change the present ruling.

Branches for South America.
American branch banks in South America, principal in Rio de Janeiro, Buenos Aires, Valparaiso and Lima, are contemplated by several groups of bankers of the United States, planning a Latin-American extension of their institutions as permitted under the new banking law.

John Barrett, director of the Pan-American Union, which is working to aid the proposed extension, said he had information that progress toward the establishment of South American branches was being made.

Bank Hearings in Seattle.
Seattle, Wash., Jan. 29.—Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Secretary of Agriculture Houston arrived from Portland today. A dinner in their honor was given by the Seattle Commercial club. The secretaries held a regional bank hearing today.

Russians Seek Bank.
St. Petersburg, Jan. 29.—Informal overtures were made by a group of Russians to the ministry of finance with a view of obtaining a charter for a Russo-American bank, intended to promote trade between Russia and the United States. The applicants said they were acting in concert with large American banking interests.
The reply given was that no discussion could be entertained until securities representing half the capital of the proposed bank—$2,500,000—had been deposited in St. Petersburg or abroad. This precaution was intended to preclude the risk of negotiations being opened with mere concession hunters.

RIOT AT MINERS' MEET

Delegates Wrangle Over Salary of Their Chief.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 29.—While a roll call on the question of increasing the president's salary from $3,000 to $4,000 a year was in progress the convention of the United Mine Workers of America adjourned. Five districts remained to be polled. The vote was close.

An effort was made to head off the roll call by William Houston, president of Indiana miners, who moved to recommit the question to the committee on constitution. This, however, was voted down after the convention had become tumultuous. Twenty-five or thirty delegates were on the floor almost all the time during the debate, shouting:

"Crooked work." "Railroading."
"Give us a fair deal."
Alexander Howatt, president of the Kansas miners, called on the sergeants-at-arms to restore order.

HAITI'S CAPITAL GUARDED

U. S. Warships in Harbor and Men
Patrol Streets.

Port au Prince, Haiti, Jan. 29.—With the arrival of the United States battleship South Carolina to join the armored cruiser Montana and with American and German bluejackets guarding the legations and patrolling the town, conditions at Port au Prince took on a more orderly aspect.

All firing has ceased. A committee of public safety has been organized, and it is believed that all danger to foreign residents is past.

President Oreste is still aboard the German cruiser Vineta and the country is without a government.

BLAIR LEE GIVEN SEAT

Senate Votes Fifty-Three to Thirteen in His Favor.

Washington, Jan. 29.—By a vote of 53 to 13 the senate seated Blair Lee, a Democrat, as a senator for Maryland. It was the first contest voted on by the senate under the new direct elections amendment. Mr. Lee took the oath of office, succeeding Senator Jackson, Republican.

Party Faced Death on Wrecked
Yacht.

Wireless Message Says Steamer's Lifeboats Were Smashed While Attempting to Rescue Party.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 29.—Frederick W. Vanderbilt and other members of his party of English nobility aboard his steam yacht, Warrior, stood for hours and watched what seemed every possible attempt at rescue fail, their craft meanwhile giving indication of breaking up off the rocky Colombian coast. They saw four life-boats lost in succession as they were swung out from the first vessel that answered the Warrior's call for succor. This first vessel was the United Fruit line Fruitera, and had not a sister ship, the Almirante, been within reach of the wireless hall all might have been lost.

The fate of the Warrior's crew, which stayed with the yacht, is not known and great apprehension is felt.
Captain Henschaen finally was forced to summon the steamer Almirante, which effected a perilous rescue. All the Fruter's lifeboats either were smashed or capsized. Those on board the Almirante are Mr. and Mrs.
Vanderbilt, the duke and duchess of Manchester and Lord Arthur George Keith-Falconer, son and heir of the earl of Kintore.

Soon after the Warrior struck, the Fruter picked up its wireless appeal for aid and steamed toward the wreck.
Although the sea was running high,
Captain Henschaen lowered boats.
One of them capsized and the others were crushed. The Almirante, which was at Santa Marta, about forty miles distant, then was called and succeeded in taking off all the Warrior's passengers. The Almirante is due to arrive at Colon today. It is understood the Vanderbilt party will proceed to New York on the Almirante, arriving there February 5.

Nothing was learned regarding the fate of the wrecked yacht and its crew, who remained on board despite the advice of the owner and the captains of the Fruter and Almirante to leave the vessel.

DANISH U. S. PACT IS BROAD

Terms of Convention for Arbitration
All Questions Agreed Upon.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Two bills to all questions which may arise, including those involving national honor, is proposed in a treaty the terms of which were agreed upon by Secretary Bryan and Constantin Brun, the Danish minister.

It is expected that the new treaty will be signed in the near future.
The convention, which will be an amplification of the principle of Mr.
Bryan's peace proposals, makes no reservation whatever in the subjects to be submitted to arbitration.

It is understood that favorable progress is being made toward the conclusion of a peace convention with Great Britain.

Renewals of 16 general arbitration treaties were considered by the senate foreign relations committee without action and will be discussed again tomorrow.

WIRELESS GERMANY TO U. S.

First Direct Message Sent by Kaiser to President Wilson.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Direct communication by wireless between Germany and the United States without relaying has been established. The first message ever transmitted by this direct means was sent by Emperor William to President Wilson.

The emperor's message was received at the White House after having been sent over land telegraph lines from Tuckerton, N. J., where it was taken at the wireless station.

The message as it was received at the White House read:
"Tuckerton, N. J., Jan. 29.—The President, Washington, D. C.—I send you my best greetings, hoping that the wireless communication will become a new link between our countries."
"WILHELM."

BRYAN'S PARLEYS BARED

Plan to Eliminate Features of Senate
Bills Told by Jap.

Tokio, Jan. 29.—Baron Makino, foreign secretary, said in reply to questions in the house of representatives that negotiations were in progress with Secretary of State Bryan for the elimination of discriminatory treatment of Japan in measures adopted or pending in the United States. He cited the bill prohibiting the importation in the United States of goods made by laborers under fourteen years of age, which Japan considers in conflict with the provisions of the treaty between the two countries. The question of the nationality of Japanese born in the United States, he added, was now being considered.

ously wounded.

LONG PUBLIC LIFE ENDS

Illinois Statesman in Office Over Half Century, With Thirty Years in Senate—Told Belief in Immortality.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Arrangements have been made for the funeral of former Senator Shelby M. Cullom, who died at his residence here. His final resting place will be Oak Ridge cemetery in Springfield, Ill.

A short funeral service was held in the Washington residence of the aged Illinois statesman today. It was attended only by intimate friends of the family. Dr. Charles Wood, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, where Mr. Cullom occupied a pew, conducted the services.

At 11:45 the body was taken to Chicago. Thence it will go to Springfield via the Chicago & Alton, leaving at 11:30 and arriving at the state capital at 4:30 Friday afternoon. The body will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs.
William B. Ridgely and Doctor Fisher, who was Mr. Cullom's family physician.

Body to Lie in State.

On arrival of the party at Springfield the body will be taken to the home of Mrs. Charles Ridgely, where it will remain until Saturday morning, when it will be conveyed to the statehouse. It will lie in state in the rotunda of the capitol until 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, when public funeral services will be held in the hall of representatives. Dr. Donald C. MacLeod, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Springfield, will conduct the service. Governor Dunne, United States Senator Sherman and Clinton L. Conkling, a lifelong friend of Senator Cullom, will speak.

The following named men have been designated to act as pallbearers:
State Senator Logan Hay, George
B. Stadden, Harry A. Converse, Jacob
Bunn, Henry Merriam, Shelby Dorwin, Frank Fisher, Loren E. Wheeler, and E. S. Robinson of Springfield, and Garfield Charles of Chicago, who was for many years private secretary for the late senator.

Unconscious Toward the End.
Mr. Cullom realized his wish of passing away peacefully. During the late 24 hours he had been in a state of coma. For 24 hours prior to that time he was barely conscious of those around him.

The last person he recognized was his son-in-law, Mr. Ridgely, who told him the secretary of war finally had decided that Colorado marble should be used in building the Lincoln monument in the national capital. This was in accord with Mr. Cullom's wish.
"Well, I wish I could have lived to see that built," murmured the senator. "But I cannot."

To the general breaking up of old age is attributed the senator's death.
His digestive organs and lungs were in excellent condition, but he had a leaky heart valve and also suffered from hardening of the arteries.

Senate Adjourns in Respect.

The tremendous hold Mr. Cullom had on the affection of those who knew him perhaps was best shown by the action of the United States senate in doing the unprecedented thing of adjourning as a mark of respect to his memory when his death was announced.

Shortly before his death Mr. Cullom testified to his sincere belief in the immortality of the soul. This fact is interesting, because in his book entitled "Fifty Years of Public Service," issued a year ago, Mr. Cullom said he had never been able to satisfy himself that the doctrine of immortality was sound.

"I have no great fear of death, except the natural dread of the physical pain which usually accompanies it," these memoirs said. "I certainly wish beyond any words I have power to express that I could have greater assurance that there will be a reuniting with those who have loved us in some future world; but from my reading of the Scripture and even admitting that there is a hereafter I cannot find any satisfactory evidence to warrant such a belief."

"Could I believe that I could meet the loved ones who have gone before, I do not know but that I should look forward with pleasure to the 'passing across.' Not having this belief, I am quite content to stay where I am as long as I can, and finally when old Charon appears to row me over the river Styx I shall be ready to go."

At the White House and throughout both branches of congress regret was expressed at the death of Mr. Cullom.

Panic After Argentine Quake.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Jan. 29.— Earthquake shocks, which occurred at Mendoza, caused a panic. The shocks were preceded by several pronounced subterranean rumblings.

New Volcanic Isle Appears.

Tokio, Jan. 29.—A new volcanic island five miles in circumference and 1,000 feet in height has appeared three miles east by south of Iwojima island,
one of the Bonin group.

Admiral Asserts Japan Can Capture Philippines.

Vreeland Testifies Before House Body and Urges More Warships for Navy.

Washington, Jan. 29.—That in case of war with Japan the Japanese could capture the Philippines within a short time was the testimony given by Rear Admiral Vreeland, a member of the general board of the navy, to the house naval committee. The capture of Hawaii was also probable, but the Japanese could not, in his opinion, capture either Alaska or the Panama canal.

Admiral Vreeland urged the adoption of the general board's recommendation of four battleships of the dreadnought type, with a proportionate number of other war vessels. Secretary of the Navy Daniels has recommended that only two battleships be provided at this session of congress. The "little navy" members of the committee tried to attack the activities of the Navy league in its efforts to build up sentiment for a big navy by means of speakers and literature.

Representative Buchanan of Illinois wanted to know whether officials of corporations manufacturing naval supplies were members of the Navy league, but Admiral Vreeland did not know.

"Are you a member of the Navy league?" asked Representative Buchanan.

"I think that is an improper question," declared Representative Kelly of Michigan.

As Rear Admiral Vreeland was not sufficiently familiar with the operations of the league to speak with authority on its activities, this question with all other statements affecting the league was stricken out of the committee record.

The members of the committee opposed to a large navy also attacked the general board. Many questions were asked as to its legal status and the method of appointing its members. Representative Buchanan quit the meeting after an exciting scene.

TO CONTROL RADIUM LANDS

Bill to Be Drawn by House Mine Committee.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Members of the house mines committee announced that they had tentatively decided that the proposed new radium bill should provide for federal control of radium ores and the finished product without authorizing the withdrawal from entry of carnotite lands. The committee plan is to permit the development of the radium-bearing lands by private enterprise and at the same time give the government control of radium production. It was virtually agreed to recommend the construction of a government owned radium reduction plant at some western point to be selected later. The committee was in session until late, following the conclusion of hearings.

COXEY TO HIKE TO CAPITAL

Army of 500,000 Poor to March to Washington.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 29.—"Gen." Jacob S. Coxey of Massillon declared he would be in Washington, D. C., on May 1 with 500,000 unemployed men, a new "Coxey's army," to impress the government officials.

"May 1 will be the twentieth anniversary of the old 'Coxey army' march to Washington," he stated. "On that day I shall be in Washington with 500,000 men—more if I can assemble them. This is the first step necessary in the uplift of the common man."

"We must impress government officials that they must legislate for the mass of the people."
